PolioPlus received $23.6 million from Rotarians and friends of Rotary, along with $69.6 million from the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation. India celebrates three years polio free

On Jan. 13, 2014, a significant milestone in the worldwide effort to eradicate polio was reached when India celebrated three years since its last new case of the disease. Official certification of the country as polio free will take place in March and a celebration is planned in February.

Long considered the hardest place in the world from which to eradicate polio, India is now a case study for mounting a successful disease response effort under complex circumstances. In 2009, India was home to almost half of the world's polio cases.
